WOMAN 4 DAYS LOST

BELIEVED TO BE YET ALIVE

LEADER OF POSSE SEARCHING FOR LOST MRS. WORTMAN AT MIDDLEBORO.

At the left of the picture is shown Blacksmith Cromwell and his helper, E. F. Martin, next to him. Reading from left to right, the other members of the party are J. E. Foss, a neighboring farmer; Alden Wortman, the lost woman's son, who saw her last, and William Norris, her brother.

Mrs. Wortman Believed to Have Been Seen in Woods and Pose Is Now Searching for Her—Hundreds Join in Hunt This Afternoon.

Special to the Boston American.

MIDDLEBORO, Oct. 27.—The first clue to the whereabouts of Mrs. Inma Wortman, who has been missing from her home since 3 o'clock Tuesday morning and for whom the whole country in this section has been looking day and night, was given to the searchers this afternoon by Mrs. Keedwell, the wife of a shoemaker, who said that at 10 o'clock to-day she saw a woman clad in a wrapper and with a red handkerchief about her head in the woods of Barden Hill.

It is now believed that the woman seen is Mrs Wortman, although it is inconceivable how she could have live since her disappearance in the woods. When the news was received here a posse of fifty men started for the Barden woods, and it is expected that before night the clue will be run down.

BAND OF 1,000 TO AID SEARCH.

Shortly after noon a posse composed of nearly 500 people started out determined to find the woman dead or alive. The closing of the factories late to-day will permit several hundred more to join in the search. Hounds are to be utilized in an attempt to trace the woman.

Should she not be found to-day a band of more than 1,000 people, headed by Constable Fred Sparrow, and including policemen and firemen, will take up the work to-morrow.

Rufus Norris, the only brother of the woman, who has been searching for her incessantly since the west away, believes that she has died from exhaustion in the woods. Others think that her body will be found in one of the ponds or streams near by. Still another theory is that the woman may have been slain by tramps for the $80 which she had in her possession.

TO OFFER A REWARD.

Sympathetic citizens are raising a fund to be offered as a reward for the finding of her body. Attorney H. W. Stetson, who has engineered the search, started it with a contribution of $25. Over $100, it is expected, will be raised by to-night.

Clues have been offered to all surrounding towns and police cooperation asked. All escaped convicts have been notified to watch the woods during their trips in an effort to get some clue.

Circulars were circulated yesterday through the three shoe factories in town by Rufus Norris, asking all men to join in the search Saturday afternoon and Sunday. More than three hundred men expressed a determination to try and clear the mystery.

Through the police have been devoting all their energy in endeavor to locate the woman during the past four days, they are still grouping in the dark. Not one clue has been found to work upon. The police and fire departments will head the search, one in Jell and the other in the hotels.

Since her arrival in port the Indrapura has been watched closely by an extra detail of officers, in order that none of the Chinese members of the crew escape and mingle with their countrymen in Chinatown.

Nothing definite, however, can be learned to-day on this point. Mr. Moran refuses to discuss the subject, and a general air of mystery surrounds it. The man who is close to Mr. Moran raised the general sentiment around headquarters, when he was asked regarding the shooting, and replied:

"Wait until to-night, and then you'll see. It will make Mr. Guild and his friends sit up and listen."

BABEL CREW ON JAVA STEAMER

The steamer Indrapura arrived in port to-day from Java with a crew made up of Chinese, Japanese, Malays, Singalese, Tamils and European officers. With one exception not a quarrel among the crew marred the whole voyage.

At Port Said one of the Chinese called a brother fifteen minutes early for his watch, an offense he was badly cut up by the offended one. The two were left at that port, one in jail and the other in the hospital.

Before her arrival in port the Indrapura has been watched closely by an extra detail of officers, in order that none of the Chinese members of the crew escape and mingle with their countrymen in Chinatown.

IN FEAR OF BURGLARS.

No one has been found who caught even a glimpse of Mrs. Wortman since she fled

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 27.—All the scenes of a big intercollegiate gridiron battle were enacted to-day when Harvard arrived for her annual game with the Cadets. Every train from the metropolis brought throngs of enthusiasts, and this was the first time that the opportunity was presented to see the Crimson outside the walls of its own stadium, combatting with a foe on hostile ground.

Color in profusion was the setting for this inimic warfare between Uncle Sam's coon stalwarts.

With the brilliant garb of the fair sex and the background of Autumn foliage it was the most entrancing sight on the banks of the Hudson this season.

Many strong partisans of the army were in the midst of the hosts who surrounded the field, and some daring spirits were willing to wager that the West Pointers would lead at the conclusion of the strife, and Crimson goal line would be crossed before the afternoon were away.

The West Point supporters who were close to the team were aware that the team was somewhat crippled to meet such a formidable combination as Harvard, but the future generals fought desperately to hold the prestige of a year ago when the Crimson were let off by a small score.

MORAN PREPARING TO SPRING SENSATION?

HIS SPEECH TO-NIGHT AT TREMONT TEMPLE TO MARK AN EPOCH IN POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

Considerable gossip as to the nature of the speech to be delivered by John B. Moran, Democratic candidate for Governor, to-night, at the monster rally under the auspices of the Independence League in Tremont Temple, is heard to-day around political headquarters. It is known that Mr. Moran has prepared himself for the greatest effort of the campaign.

His speech is expected to create a sensation. Just what line he will follow in his argument, as Mr. Moran prefers to call his speeches, is not known to his most intimate friends.

The fighting candidate for Governor has carefully guarded this fact as his secret, but that it will create a great stir in both Republican and Democratic circles is stated by those persons who would be most likely to gain some idea of its trend.

Around political headquarters the tip has gone forth that "there will be something doing when Moran gets on the platform to-night."

While, as stated, the subject of Mr. Moran's speech is not known, it is believed that he will get back at Governor Guild for his speech last night in Northampton in a manner that will surprise and stun the Republican candidate's supporters.

HURL BOMB, WOUND 10, GET BIG TREASURE

Special Cable to Boston American.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 27.—The revolutionists to-day executed a daring plan having for its aim the looting of the custom house. They succeeded in getting away with 2,580,000 rubles (about $193,000).

The revolutionists entered the building and hurled a bomb at the cashier, creating until after the explosion. The cashier escaped harm, but the excitement following the bomb's explosion gave the revolutionists the chance they wanted.

Before the police could make their way through the crowd that collected, the revolutionists secured the booty and fled.

At least ten, and possibly more, innocent spectators were wounded, and some will die.

MORAN DARES GOV. GUILD TO Stand on Record and FACE HIM IN JOINT DEBATE

To His Excellency, Curtis Guild, Jr., Governor of Massachusetts, Dear Sir:

FROM the public platforms at Lawrence, Haverhill, Newburyport and Springfield you have attacked my record and the platform upon which I stand as a candidate for Governor, and from the public platforms at Boston, Gardner, Fitchburg, Mackinac Island, Lowell, Lawrence, New Bedford, Fall River and Lynn I have criticised your acts as Governor of this Commonwealth and the platform on which you stand for re-election. You have declared yourself willing to stand upon your record, and you have formally accepted the platform adopted by the convention which nominated you. I am prepared to defend every act of my public life and every plank in my platform. I make it that you are prepared to do likewise.

Meet in the Same Arena.

It was a good old-fashioned New England practice of candidates for popular suffrage to meet each other face to face in the same arena, where the people might measure them, see them together, test their sincerity and weigh their cases. In order to eliminate misstatements of facts, reckless exaggerations and the entire evasion of the duty for facts, for arguments, for truth, I suggest that we be likely to interpresent each other and in the face of the other when each has a chance to reply and where the same audience will judge us both at the same time.

1. I will maintain that you appointed Senator Dana a judge of the Superior Court as a reward for his conduct in relation to the Overtime Bill, which relieved part of the textile manufacturing upon that measure as Governor.

2. I will maintain that his record as a member of the Legislature demonstrates him to have been an enemy of the people and the ally and servant of corporations, and, therefore, a person absolutely unfit for appointment as judge.

3. I will maintain that he has not had, as a lawyer, either the training or experience which would qualify him as a person suitable for appointment as a judge.

That Overtime Bill.

4. I will maintain that you were opposed to the Overtime Bill for protection of women and children.

5. I will maintain that you are opposed to granting a jury trial to persons charged with violating labor injunctions.

6. I will maintain that you are opposed to legislation which shall increase taxation, compel wealth and success to pay its full and reasonable share of burdens to the expenses of our government.

7. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of a general law against private monopoly, with limitations and penalties.

8. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of a general law against the raising of prices of necessities, by conspiracy and other unlawful means, with imprisonment penalties only.

9. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of a law just and liberal to the people, providing for the taking of public utilities into public ownership.

10. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws for the employment of factory inspectors to the performance of their duties.

11. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws for the prevention of persons and firms from blacklisting or without the requirement of cause.

Question of Earning Fines.

12. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws providing that offenders on whose fines are imposed when unable to pay them shall have reasonable time in which to earn them.

13. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws authorizing district attorneys to investigate all divorce cases and to appear in each one for the Commonwealth.

14. I will maintain that you are opposed to a law providing for the nomination of all elective officers by direct vote.

15. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws requiring the district attorney to appear in all insanity proceedings for all persons whose liberty is endangered.

16. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws giving Civil War veterans within the limits of the city preference in employment.

17. I will maintain that you are opposed to eligible lists, and to requiring the appointee to be removable at the will of the Governor.

18. I will maintain that you are opposed to shorter terms for petit and grand jurors.

19. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws defining what constitutes a grand larceny and a criminal and providing penalties therefor.

20. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws providing for the initiative and referendum and for the recall of faithless legislators.

Opposed Public Ownership.

21. I will maintain that you are opposed to laws providing for the public ownership and operation of public utilities by nation, State and city.

22. I will maintain that you are not in favor of immediate local option.

23. I will maintain that you are opposed to tariff laws providing for free hides, free coal, free lumber, free iron and free wood pulp.

24. I will maintain that you are opposed to the immediate passage of legislation to save Massachusetts manufacturers from their handicap by unjust tariff on the raw materials of their products.

25. I will maintain that you are opposed to the immediate tearing down of tariff walls which entrench monopoly.

26. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws as to employers' liability for accidents more protective than existing laws.

27. I will maintain that you are opposed to laws providing that Judges, meeting aside verdicts, shall in writing assign the reasons therefor, reviewable by the Supreme Court.

28. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws more stringent as to publicity of expenditure and accounting of money by campaign committees.

Regarding Deus of Crime.

29. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of drastic election laws which will enable district attorneys to successfully investigate and prosecute this class of crime.

30. I will maintain that you are opposed to the repeal of the legislative agent act and enactment of laws making lobbying a crime.

31. I will maintain that you are opposed to the repeal of the legislative immunity act, which as it now exists makes every original legislative statement themselves from criminal prosecution.

32. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of stringent laws against market gambling.

33. I will maintain that you are opposed to the passage of laws abolishing capital punishment.

34. And I will maintain that an ideal Governor is one fearless and faithful, resolute and determined, firm and unbiased, with self-control and tranquility, uncontrolled by politicians, a servant of the people, conscientious in official obligations and evading none of them, without shifting responsibility, unanimated shield of judges now cringing in fear at their responsibilities of this office, a man who knows the law and dares to enforce it.

Must Stand or Fall.

35. I will maintain that you are not such a Governor.

Every proposition set forth above I will prove the enactment of as law.

I propose to be unfair. You have had an experience equal to mine in public speaking. You have had practice of a party which has for years been the dominant party in politics. You have declared that you have faith in your cause and the competency and ability of you and your principles and our records are equal before us. I am willing to meet and stand or fall.

Here can we better present them, and how can the people hear them and weigh them, and judge of the merits of the issues, than by meeting each other upon the same platform, with full knowledge of all of my speaking engagements next week to be met by appointments which my representatives may make with your representatives for meetings within this engagement upon our records in public, before such audiences which may contain the political pledges of our conduct in office if elected. Yours truly,

JOHN B. MORAN.

ASK OVERTIME BILL DODGERS TO EXPLAIN OR BE CONDEMNED

The executive council of the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, meets this afternoon in Wells Memorial Building, to make arrangements for the final week of the campaign. Hon. Thomas S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor and against those who voted to have killed or dodged the Overtime Bill.

Senator John J. Kirby of Lynn, who did and Senator John E. Beck have been invited to appear before the council and if sufficient reasons why they should not be condemned for their action with the Overtime Bill was defeated.

Speeches will be arranged to make addresses throughout the State next week.

WORCESTER, Oct. 27.—Iron Moulders' Union No. 5 of this city has adopted resolutions endorsing the candidacy of John B. A NEW MAGAZINE—"WOMAN."

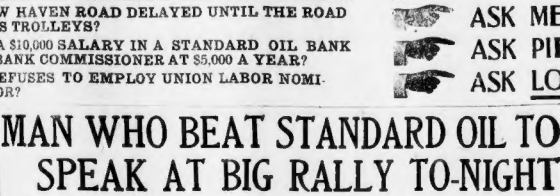
The Sixth of the Frank A. Munsey Company's Publications.

The Frank A. Munsey Company has, with the addition of its newest venture, an increased total annual issue of its monthly publications to six million. The oldest one of the six is the Argosy, which is now quarterly in form and 25 cents in price. The others are Munsey's, the Cavalier, the Scrap Book and the Railroad Man's Magazine. The total circulation of these six magazines is over 2,000,000 copies, and the amount of fiction issued by this one publishing house every month is large enough to weigh over five tons.

"Woman" is a straight reading magazine, making up for its lack of illustrations by its wealth of stories and other departments. It was apparently built on the theory that what a woman would like to read a good story than glance over a few pages of more or less interesting illustrations. The principle is undoubtedly a sound one, when the stories are as much worth reading as those in the November "Woman." The first number indicates that Mr. Munsey has again accomplished a seeming impossibility in finding a new field for a new magazine. This is, however, as it should be, for wealth Mr. Munsey introduced the first 10-cent magazine the publishing world has gotten more or less into the habit of waiting to see what he will do next. "Woman" is his latest answer, and a very good one.

MAN WHO BEAT STANDARD OIL TO SPEAK AT BIG RALLY TO-NIGHT



LEAGUE AND DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR AUDITOR AND TELL TALE BILL

Fire-stitute reproduction of piece of paper in possession of Mr. Hisgen showing railroad discrimination in favor of the Oil Trust.

Thomas S. Hisgen, Candidate for State Auditor, Defeated Trust in Fierce Fight.

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 27.—One of the speakers at the big Independence League rally to be held this evening in Tremont Temple, Boston, will be Thomas L. Hisgen, candidate of the League and also of the Democratic party for State Auditor, who has become such a prominent figure in the campaign because of the valiant and successful fight he made against the Standard Oil trust.

The question of the Trust, as represented by Rockefeller, is thus brought squarely into the battle of the ballots. So widely known is the fight that Mr. Hisgen, as president of the Four Brothers' Oil Company, has made and was compelled to be considered in this section of the State, regardless of politics, that the Republicans are flocking to his standard. They say that is putting a shiver into the G. O. P. ranks.

Mr. Hisgen is not a politician. He is a plain, honest, practical business man. Thoughtful voters are considering this phase of the campaign.

To Show Hostility to Trusts.

In the eastern part of the State a cam paign will be waged on the independent and an appeal made to Republicans to vote for Mr. Hisgen on the ground that his candidacy affords them an opportunity to indicate unmistakably their hostility to trusts, and that Mr. Hisgen's election would be in no way jeopardize Republican supremacy in Massachusetts.

Republican politicians concede that the Oil Standard Oil issue will turn thousands of Republican votes to Mr. Hisgen, but argue that the dissection will not be sufficient to defeat Henry E. Turner of Malden, the present State Auditor, who is up for office with a plurality of 65,000 to 70,000. Democrats contend that the auditor's department is open to criticism, and point out that had a Democrat been nominated for election Pat had no such way jeopardize Republican supremacy in Massachusetts.

Everyone Knows "Oil Man."

In Springfield everybody knows Tom Hisgen, "the oil man." He talks oil morning, noon and night, and he talks it as defectionally to the laborer, with the dinner pail, as to the merchant or banker. Forty-four years old, of medium height, sturdily built, smooth-shaven, with blue eyes and hair as light tan as a boy he has really been a lifelong oil man. He "oil-inoculated"—such are the outward characteristics of the man who has made up his mind in three months, but never has he been so wide a territory as he has covered in Massachusetts, which has adopted the tactics of opening meetings in territory instead of relinquishing old when hardest pressed by its powerful enemy. The independent company now has immense rank stations in West Springfield, Pittsfield, North Adams and Hampton. From these centres the wholesale agents spread and deliver oil by the "overland"—such are the outward characteristics of the man who has made up his mind in three months, but never has he been so wide a territory as he has covered in Massachusetts, which has adopted the tactics of opening meetings in territory instead of relinquishing old when hardest pressed by its powerful enemy. The independent company now has immense rank stations in West Springfield, Pittsfield, North Adams and Hampton. From these centres the wholesale agents spread and deliver oil by the gallon, and one storekeeper was peddling his oil free for a month if he would refer all to the Standard Oil fold.

More than half the oil consumed in Springfield and vicinity is sold by the independent company, and in Pittsfield forty-five per cent. of the business. The contract to sell only independent oil.

On the basis of Standard Oil prices in cities and towns in which there is no competition Mr. Hisgen has saved and is saving consumers in the territory in which he has business approximately $1,000,000 a year.

Carried Trust Oil Free.

Mr. Hisgen is planning to circulate an campaign literature a specific instance of rate discrimination, which, even before the passage of the railroad legislation, was in direct violation of existing laws.

The discrimination in question is shown conclusively by a Delaware & Hudson Railroad way bill attesting to forty barrels of gasoline, weighing 16,000 pounds, or about eight tons, that were shipped from Albany to Green Island, Troy, "free." The way bill is dated May 17, 1904, and bears virtually fell into the hands of the employees of the independent company in Albany. The original is in the possession of Mr. Hisgen who intends to distribute fac simile copies broadcast.

500 SEE TWO FAMILIES EVICTED; TENANT HURT

ELEVEN HEBREWS PUT INTO STREET WITH BELONGINGS IN LYNN RENT WAR.

Following resistance of what they claim are exorbitant rentals demanded by Lynn landords, two Jewish families living at No. 28 Amity street, Lynn, were today evicted from their homes. Over 500 men, women and children witnessed the eviction and for a time threatened to assist one of the tenants, Hyman Hainsteln, who was badly cut about the face and hands from the flying glass of a door which Constable Donahue broke after Hainstein had refused to open it.

Constable Donahue was accompanied by Constable Dennisson and Patrolman John H. Lyons of the Lynn police force. Frightened by the assault of the officer upon the door of the house, Hainstein admitted the constable's assistants. The latter quickly removed the furniture into the rear yard. Hainstein's wife and three children had spent the night at a neighbor's in anticipation of eviction today.

The other family evicted was that of Primer Coerner. With his wife and four children, the latter weeping pitifully, he was driven into the street and their furniture was piled around them.

Mrs. Morris Coerner and four children, living at No. 28 Amity street, who had also been threatened with eviction, were not molested today, after Mrs. Coerner from her window had threatened the officers and informed them that if they wanted to put her out they would have to take her away first in a police ambulance, as she was ill.

The furniture of the two evicted families was removed to a house on Tremont street, hurriedly rented for their accommodation.

L. E. Burgin, representing himself as president of the Lynn Tenants' Protective Association, who witnessed the eviction, stated to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that the association would take the matter into the courts. He alleged that there was a conspiracy on the part of Lynn landlords, the latter characterized as "combination to extort money from poor Hebrew tenants by excessive rents.

Central Wage Earners' Club Denounces Guild and Draper

The candidacy of John B. Moran for Governor was unanimously indorsed at a regular meeting of the Boston Central Wage Earners' Club last Wednesday night. Governor Guild was severely criticised by several speakers because of his appointment of William F. Dana to the Superior Court and Pierre Jay to the position of bank commissioner. W. T. A. Fitzgerald was also indorsed for registrar of deeds of Suffolk County. Manfield for Senator from Wards 6, 12 and 17, and Mr. Cushing of Wards 6 and 8 for the Board of Aldermen. Resolutions unanimously indorsing E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant-Governor, and denouncing Eben S. Draper, were passed at a previous meeting of the Central Club.

HUB WILL STAND BY MORAN, SAYS MAYOR

From the Mayor's Paper, the Republic.

The State campaign is tremendously exciting and interesting. The wise ones are bothered as never before. Tremendous attendances are the rule. Enthusiasm is unbounded and big receptions are most comfiul. It looks like big year. The Republicans have been working like beavers for last week; but have made no appreciable gain. The news from every section of the State indicates that hundreds of Republicans will support Mr. Moran or stay away from the polls.

The labor sections of the Common wealth are very generally supporting the Republican ticket, are not for Joe Moran, from whom they received little favor in the two years since William L. Douglas was elected Governor. The Democrats

OVER 1,000 VOLUNTEERS TO SEARCH FOR WOMAN IN MIDDLEBORO MYSTERY

Hounds Called Into Play in Hope of Running Down Clue.

from her home. She was then haunted by the fear that burglars were ransacking the house.

Clad in only a thin wrapper, it is not believed that she could have survived the heavy rain storms of the past two days. She was fifty-five years of age, in fi health, and could not have travelled over six miles.

Not even the direction in which she fled is known. She had previously spoken of some relatives in Kings County, New Brunswick, and an effort has been made to get word to them, in hope that she might have reached there.

She took over $60, her eighteen-year-old son's savings, with her. Many fear that tramps, who haunt the neighborhood, may have waylaid her for the money in her wanderings.

Tispaquin pond and the Fallbrook mill pond, half a mile from her home, the Nemasket River and the Fallbrook stream are being dragged to-day.

Of the 300 men in the search half will drag the ponds, and the remainder will cover the roads and nearby woods.

Though frantic with grief, Mrs. Wortman's brother, Rufus Norris, refuses to give up the search. He is dismissable and only hopes to obtain her dead body.

His great frame shook with emotion as he told his story to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. He is a farmer, over six feet tall and weighing 225 pounds. He has the strength of a Hercules.

"I have done everything. I have wandered everywhere. I don't know what to do next," he said.

"I walked over fifteen miles to-day, from sunrise to sunset, leading a party of men. I have done this every day for four days.

"I don't think she met with foul play. I don't think she committed suicide. I believe she has started to death.

"She was in ill health, and her nerves were unstrung. She half acted rather queerly for a short time previous, but I never imagined it would lead to this.

"All I want is to find her body for burial. It is a blind search, for we don't know where to turn for her.

"Nobody could survive the fierce rain storms of the past few days in the woods. She had nothing to eat and only a wrapper on.

"I have telephoned everywhere and notified police, are men and farmers to be on the lookout.

"I have secured the help of three Middleboro shoe factories to turn out to-morrow.

"I am weary and footsore, but I will hunt until my legs give out from under me. She was a kind lovable sister."

Young Alder Wortman, the eighteen-year-old son, was also in despair when seen. He said:

"I never expect to see mother again, though I would like to obtain her body.

"Mother was nervous. She had looked only on the dark side of everything for the past few weeks.

"I have walked miles and miles. I will never give up hunting for her.

Attorney G. W. Stetson, who has appealed to the citizens and factory help to turn out, said:

"That woman must be found, dead or alive. I cannot be find her starved to death in the woods. I will head the hundreds of searchers to-morrow."

DESCRIPTIVE SKETCH OF MISSING MRS. WORTMAN

POLICE AID LANE IN 11TH DISTRICT

The Boston police department has taken upon itself a new duty, that of tearing down the pictures of Ex-Senator Andrew J. Peters, the Democratic candidate for Congress against Senator Daniel W. Lane.

Yesterday a policeman of station 5 was seen near Berkeley and Dover streets with a long pole tearing down the pictures of Ex-Senator Peters which had been tacked on to a vacant building.

Ex-Senator Peters proposes to inquire into the matter. He says he authorized the posters to be put only in the places where permission could be had, and if there were any not in their proper place it was the duty of the property owner to notify him.

Guild Real Police Head.

Neither in fire stations nor in the police regulations is there a law or rule which permits a policeman to do campaign work for any party, and it is contended that there is no certain penalties provided by law if there was an act of trespass.

While Stephen O'Meara, the Police Commissioner, the real Chief of Police Governor Guild, who appointed O'Meara, and ex-Senator Peters intends to call one or both up, they also will be called upon to get into politics so actively.

When the police and license problems were placed under two separate boards the idea was to keep both out of politics, but the police of station 5 are doing political work by tearing down political signs, while the Excise Board is terrorizing the liquor dealers by asking questionnaires as to regards their employes which were never asked before prior to a State election.

Is asking an Inquiry.

District Attorney Moran's campaign managers are making a quiet investigation of the interference in politics of these two State departments for which the people of Boston pay the bills without having a word to say as to how much they shall be paid or a voice in making the appointments.

BOY DETECTIVE CAUSES ARREST FOR FORGERY

Arrested upon information furnished by a boy detective, whose deeds might furnish a theme for a dime novel, Benjamin H. Mason, sixteen years old, of No. 26 Wild ow street, was arraigned in the Municipal Court before Judge Parmenter to-day and held in $2,500 for the November Grand Jury on the charge of forgery.

The boy sleuth is Samuel H. Canfield of No. 31 Somerset street.

The warrant upon which young Mason was arrested to-day charges that he forged the name of Frank T. Collis of No. 15 Chestnut street to a check drawn upon the International Press Company on October 6.

Mason and Canfield were both employed as messenger boys by the Boston Fire Department Company of No. 180 Milk street last August. At that time, it is alleged, young Mason was sent out by the bookkeeper of the concern to cash a check for $10. He is said to have failed to return with the money and Canfield started out on his trail.

Shortly Canfield found his quarry, after a few days and took him to police headquarters. As there was no charge against him there, Canfield and his pilgrim went to the University of Berlin, which has been established by Joseph Speyer.

The principal address was made by Professor John W. Burgess of the University of California, who is the first occupant of the Roosevelt chair.

A letter from President Roosevelt expressing his good will and friendship was then read, and then came professor Burgess, after which the Emperor spoke briefly but enthusiastically of the American President.

At the conclusion of his remarks he called on the audience to salute the President and then led the shout that answered his suggestion.

Empress Victoria joined, as did all of the leading literary and educational leaders who were present.

ASKS $100,000 FOR FRANKLIN SQUARE HOUSE

President of Corporation Announces Need of More Financial Assistance.

The Franklin Square House, one of the remarkable institutions of Boston, accommodates 1,000 working girls and students at the present time. It meets an emergency. It is declared to those who know, which is graphically set forth in the house circulars as follows:

George L. Perin, the president of the corporation, has something of a very interesting nature to say about this hotel, and he does it in the following letter:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

When two years ago we succeeded in raising $100,000 for the Franklin Square House I was careful to make it clear to the public that we had actually accomplished only one-third of our gigantic task. I did not want people to be deceived into helping us on the assumption that $100,000 would entirely pay for our property. The Franklin Square House property, on a conservative estimate, would cost in the buildings were erected now, not less than $600,000. If will actually have cost us, with all necessary improvements, to date, only $300,000. One-third of this amount has already been raised.

Go For Second Instalment.

I am writing now to say that we are about to attack the second $100,000. By the advice of prominent business men we have decided I have waited for two years to give the benevolent public a breathing spell, and also that we might not claim attention which justly belongs to other noble philanthropies. But the time has now come when I must appeal to dead earnest once more with our big problem. But meanwhile I have been altogether happy, for I am able to announce a definite subscription of $25,000, one-quarter of the amount required for the time.

I have promising assurances of more from other sources. But the most doubtful will be willing to admit that this is a most worthy object for assistance. Additions from week to week to the guide service will be made as the public desires. I believe they will be with us now. And when? Because it will carry us so much nearer the goal of complete victory. As one business man put it:

"I would rather give $1,000 on the one hundredth thousand than $1,000 on the first hundred. Because then I will be twice as good."

But why should anybody hesitate? It is no longer an experiment. It is a success. It is no longer an experimental scale that is not to be. It is taking care of more than 1,000 working girls and students who have no regular homes in Boston. It is conducted on a business basis, and is conducted with high economic and ethical standards. It is operated on a METHODIST

Franklin Square House a Home.

It is a home with sympathetic interest in every resident. It furnishes a free reading room and nursery, ample recreation rooms, an entertainment hall, a hospital with resident nurse and physician, with rare exceptions, at moderate rates, private parlors where girls may receive their company in a respectable way. Already since the opening, four years ago, more than 2,000 young women have been accommodated.

It will be seen from the above that we are dealing with facts and not with theories. We have no doubt that the public will find out the fact in time are thousands of young women hunting for a home. They will find either to work or study.

Besides, there are self-respecting girls, who feel they live is of almost infinite import to the world, who would like to feel that there is a place to live at once economically pure, moral and refined. This is what the Franklin Square House means.

Many Mason's recent alleged plunge into the vortex of feminine finance was brought to the attention of the police, however, and a warrant issued. Canfield gave information that led to the capture of Mason to-day. It is said.

DEFIED JUDGE WHO DECIDED AGAINST HIM

LYNN, Oct. 27.—"Well," said Lawyer Frederick E. Shaw to Judge John W. Berry in the Lynn Police Court to-day, "I am satisfied that I cannot get justice in this court. In a case similar to that which we have just been trying this court ruled not long since exactly opposite to its ruling of to-day."

With a wave of his hand, the attorney started for the door, as if to abandon his case.

Judge Berry flushed.

"Come back here!" he called.

Shaw continued on his way.

"You come back here," demanded Judge Berry, "or I'll send a policeman to bring you back."

Shaw came back.

Then followed a more or less heated colloquy. Shaw's part inked of contempt proceedings. Shaw says he is going to see "some one about it."

The attorney had raised the point that the action of Lot Thompson in replevin goods sold on instalments, was recognized unless and until certain demand has been made for the return of the property. Judge Berry ruled against him.

The suit was that of George W. Lord against George H. Gorham for the return of a watch and a chain, valued at $58.50, upon which Gorham claims to have paid $28.

SAYS GIRL PRISONER TORTURED AT SHILOH

ONE DAUGHTER NOW INSANE, THE MOTHER FIGHTS HOLY GHOSTERS FOR THE OTHER

Special to the Boston American.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27.—Protesting that one of her daughters has been driven insane by zealots at the Holy Ghost community, and that the other is now on the verge of becoming a maniac, both from the effects of abusive treatment, being fed on raw ground chilly and by all kinds of privations, Mrs. Alice Phelps of Kansas City, Mo., is here today fighting to get the girls under her care once more.

One Daughter Insane.

One daughter, Bessie, has already been declared insane, and some time ago was sent to the insane asylum at Augusta, where she is now. Her condition is said only and by to be a continuous line catching the shins. The other daughter, Mrs. Phelps is still kept at the Shiloh settlement, physicians a prisoner, the mother declares.

Both of the Phelps women are now completely raving and were locked in their rooms before leaving the Shiloh settlement nearly six years ago.

Mrs. Phelps was at "Stand Hill" yesterday, but she was not allowed to speak to her daughter. She was escorted to the house by Dr. Jewell, who is chief of the place, who said her daughter would not be allowed to leave the holy grounds.

Mrs. Phelps walked around the place where she was guarded by the Holy Ghosters. Soon after her daughter May, in a buggy, and that the other is now insane. Mrs. May Phelps came out and made a dash for the door of the carriage, but was grabbed by the guards and hustled in before the guards caught her. Mrs. Phelps then started away in the direction of Portland, and screaming for her daughters to be released.

Witnesses will be put on by Mrs. Phelps to prove that her daughters are not insane, that she was in no way to be sent about the place. Fearing that if she entered the settlement she would be brought before the Holy Ghosters, Mrs. Phelps remained at the home of friends in this city. As soon as she learned that she could get a search warrant and will begin legal action to secure the release of her daughters.

Stood It Six Years.

It was six years ago that the two Phelps girls entered the Shiloh settlement. The Rev. W. Hartmann, a disciple of Dowie, now in Kansas City, where he met the Phelps girls and, a religious turn of mind he succeeded in inducing them to go to Shiloh and join with the Holy Ghosters. After staying both gave up their belongings, and with the exception of a small amount of money, turned over all their property to the Holy Ghosters.

"DONOVAN FOR SHERIFF," SAY POSTAL CARDS

The receipt of mysterious postal cards ostensibly in the interest of James Donovan for sheriff of Suffolk county, has caused considerable political excitement. The cards, which are unsigned, all bear the Boston postmark of October 26, and are addressed to the voters of James Donovan, with four lines printed on them.

The cause for the mysterious appearance of the cards is the absence of Donovan, the nominee of Democrats and Republicans for sheriff. Donovan is now in Europe, and will not return to this country for several weeks, but calls a week before election day.

Donovan's friends are at a loss to explain the appearance of the cards, and declare that they have no knowledge of their origin.

LEAGUE RALLY TO-NIGHT WILL DWARF ALL OTHERS

CHANCE FOR ALL TO HEAR MORAN AND BROWN

Stand Ready on Common If Overflow Is Too Big for Halls In Tremont Temple.

LEADERS TO ADDRESS ALL

Only fair weather is needed to make tonight's Independence League demonstration the greatest outpouring in the interest of the State candidates ever seen in Massachusetts.

The great auditorium of Tremont Temple will be filled by 3,500 people. Lorimer Hall, also in the Tremont Temple building, will hold 1,000 more. To each of these great concourses of people speeches upon the vital issues of the present campaign will be made by John C. Crehan and E. Gerry Brown, Independence League and Democratic candidates for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, and by other orators of national and local fame.

Overflow on Common.

"Every man, woman and child who attempts to attend the Tremont rally," said State Secretary Davis to-day, "will have an opportunity to see and hear not only Messrs. Moran and Brown, but the other prominent speakers. Not satisfied with engaging Lorimer Hall for an overflow meeting, we are determined to get so large a place for still another meeting that no matter how many thousands may come we can all be taken care of. Boston Common is the place.

His Honor, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, has granted a permit to the Independence League to hold its overflow meeting on the Common, and a large platform and speakers' stand was erected there, together with platform from which the stand and surrounding location will be illuminated by calcium lights.

This meeting upon the Common will be held only in the event that large numbers of people are unable to get into Tremont Temple. Tickets have been issued to the capacity of the large auditorium. It is possible, of course, that a great many of these may not be used. It has been decided to open the doors at half past 6, instead of 7 o'clock, as at first announced, and ticket holders will be admitted until 7.45, after which time the public will be allowed to take all unoccupied seats. At this time Lorimer Hall will also be thrown open and 1,000 people will be seated there.

Follow the Band.

No tickets will be required for admission to Lorimer Hall.

If when these two halls have been filled—but before that time nearly 5,000 people will have been accommodated—there still remains outside the hall a large number of people, the plans made for an overflow meeting on the Common will be put in execution.

The First Corps Cadet Band, which will give a continuous concert of patriotic and popular music from 7 o'clock until the speaking in the large auditorium, then will leave the hall after the oratory has commenced and march to the stand erected on the Common. This will be a signal for those waiting outside of the hall to proceed to that place, and if they follow the band they will arrive at the point set out for the speaking in time to hear all of it.

By this it will be seen that no person need remain away from Tremont Temple because of the fear that he or she will not be unable to secure a seat and thereby miss the speaking, for not only will there be a very good chance of securing admission to one or the other of the halls, but if this fails there will still be the meeting upon the Common, where a very large number of people can assemble and distinctly hear the speakers.

Audiences Representative.

Nor need any one fear a suffocating and unmanageable crowd. Superintendent Pierce of the Police Department was in consultation last night with Captains Hanlon and Cain of Stations 2 and 3, and arrangements have been made by which details of police will be made both in Tremont streets and on the Common which will assure the public of order and a reasonable degree of personal comfort.

For that matter, the character of order may be judged by the class of people who in the past three days have applied for tickets at the State headquarters of the Independence League, there will be little need of police protection against any unpleasantness that sometimes attends waiting in a large crowd. It is already strikingly apparent that the audiences in both halls will be highly representative of all parties and classes in Boston and the Metropolitan district. Those who have secured seats include Democrats, Republicans, Prohibitionists and Socialists of every shade of belief in each of these parties represented. Business men and clergymen have vied with the more numerous workingmen in their desire to secure an opportunity to hear Messrs. Moran, Brown and Williams and the other noted speakers set forth the principles which the present campaign is being waged.

Many Republicans.

It is apparent that women will be present in decidedly large numbers. The gallery in each hall has been reserved for them and their escorts, and there is every indication that it will be completely filled and that some of them may have to hear the speakers from seats in the parquet. Half Numbers of the State's best known Democrats are among those who will attend, and it has been a source of satisfaction to the Independence League officials that fully one-half of the great audience will certainly be Republicans.

"This is a source of gratification to us," said President William N. Osgood of the League to-day, "because it signifies that party fences are down in the desire of all seekers for a return to real popular government to see the representatives of that idea elected."

CHARGES MULTIPLY AGAINST YOUTH

Patrolman Alger of the Hanover street station to-day arrested Benjamin R. Mason, nineteen years old, of No. 26 Windsor street, Everett, on a warrant charging him with breaking and entering a North End clothing store and stealing several small articles. At police headquarters it was found that Inspector Goodis had two warrants for Mason, charging him with passing fraudulent checks.

Independence League Asks Voters to Aid the Campaign Fund

The Executive Committee of the Independence League has issued the following statement:

"The campaign which is being made by the Independence League is for the purpose of placing the people in control of their government. The business men of the community are vitally interested. It is a fight of the people, by the people and for the people. The Gas Trust, Traction Trust—all trust interests—will see to it that the trust campaign shall not suffer for want of funds.

"In order to make an effective campaign and to afford an opportunity to the people of contributing toward sustaining the campaign being fought in their interest, the Executive Committee of the Independence League solicits contributions toward paying the expenses of the campaign.

"All contributions will be appreciated, whether the amount is large or small, and should be made payable to J. F. Davis, Secretary, Room 402, Winthrop Building, 7 Water Street, Boston."

BUNCOED OUT OF $960, HIS LIFE SAVINGS

On Way to Italy Fellow-Countrymen Work Confidence Game on Peter Cassese.

HE MET TWO STRANGERS

A victim of a confidence game worked upon him by two of his own countrymen, Peter Cassese of No. 12 Washington street, North Weymouth, is to-day mourning the loss of the savings of a lifetime, $960. With his family, Cassese intended to sail for Italy yesterday on the steamer Romanic.

Cassese arrived in Boston yesterday to sail for Italy in the afternoon. He met two other Italians, and they went about the North End bidding farewell to America. The three men visited several saloons and finally sat down upon a bench in the Common. One of the two strangers told Peter that he had $500, and he was afraid that it would be stolen. He asked Peter to keep it for him, and Peter consented, allowing his new-found friend to put the "five hundred" with his own roll, which he placed in a handkerchief and put in an inside pocket.

The two strangers then went away, promising to return soon, but they did not, and upon looking into the handkerchief again, Cassese found that a roll of paper had been substituted for the money. Crazed with grief, he reported the theft to the police, and they are on the lookout for the confidence men. Cassese has gone back to North Woburn to begin all over again.

Prouby & Co., driven by Edward J. Berry, upsetting the truck and throwing the horse to the street. Burns was taken to the relief station with both arms dislocated at the elbows.

GAY STUDENTS TURN HARVARD INTO PRISON

College Locked Up First Time in History by Youths Taking New Degree.

BOYS CLAMOR AT GATE

For the first time since the university was founded, back in the seventeenth century, Harvard College was closed tight for a few hours early to-day. Students being initiated into some college fraternity were compelled to climb to the top of the high gates around the campus and tie them up with heavy telegraph wires.

Students living in the dormitories in the college yard, returning home late last night, found that the great double gates all around the college proper were closed and apparently locked tight.

The students waited around for an hour or two and then set up a yell, "We want to get in."

This cry attracted the attention of the watchmen inside and they came out, but were unable to open the big gates. After an examination it was found that each one of the gates was tied up at the top with heavy telegraph wires, and it was not until after the watchmen, police officers and students had worked two hours to unwind the wires that the gates were opened. This was at 2:30 a. m. to-day.

Two "City of Cambridge" refuse barrels to-day adorned the pillars of the class of '77 gates. They were removed.

LIVES SAVED BY BABY'S CRYING

The cries of Teddy Lynch, the eight months old son of Mrs. Hannah Lynch, probably saved the lives of many of the occupants of the three and one-half story brick lodging house at No. 254 Shawmut avenue which shortly before noon to-day, when a fire started in one of the rooms.

Mrs. Catherine Lyons, the proprietor of the lodging house, was attracted by the cries of the baby. The child's mother was out. Arriving on the second floor the landlady found the hall and frontroom filled with dense smoke, and the room occupied by James Worthen, one of the lodgers, was a mass of flames. Warning the other lodgers she ran from the building with the assistance of Mrs. Ada Leach and Mrs. Nelson Turcott, soon had the fire extinguished.

SAVED FROM FLAMES AT SEA

Special Cable to Boston American.

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 27.—The British steamer Matatua, which arrived to-day, brought with her the passengers and the crew of the steamer Haverstraw Grange, which was burned at sea October 24.

The Haverstraw Grange was bound for Melbourne from New York, and belonged to the Empire Transport Company. On October 24 flames started on board, and all efforts to subdue them were of no avail. The Matatua encountered her during the day, and after another fight with the flames the crew and passengers abandoned the Haverstraw Grange. Great difficulty was experienced in getting the people from the burning ship, but the men from the Matatua stood by until the last one was safe.

FATALLY SHOT WHILE HUNTING

While hunting early to-day in the woods adjoining the Linden Woods cemetery, George Potter, twenty-five, of No. 28½ Gould street, Roslindale, was mortally wounded by the accidental discharge of his double-barred shotgun. He is on the dangerous list at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and the physicians say there is little hope for his recovery. Potter's brother Harry was with him at the time of the accident.

The injured man had wounded a squirrel and the rodent started to climb a tree. Holding the barrel of the gun, Potter tried to hit the squirrel with the butt end. The concussion exploded the other charge. Potter is married and has a four-year-old son.

20 PER CENT. FOR TRUST IN ICE FAMINE

Six Quarterly Dividends Declared On the Old Preferred Stock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The American Ice Company made such large profits out of the "ice famine" of last Summer that it was enabled yesterday to declare six quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. each on the old cumulative preferred stock.

The declaration took the financial world completely by surprise, as the Ice Trust has been loud in its complaints all Summer of the scarcity of ice and of its desire to limit its profits in order to supply the community as cheaply as possible.

The officers of the company declared that a great injustice had been done them by the charges in the newspapers that the New York supply of ice had been deliberately curtailed in order to permit the company to charge the exorbitant prices which prevailed all Summer. These officials maintained that the margin of profit at the high prices was so small that the company would make no money at all during the Summer.

No dividend had been paid on the old stock since April, 1902. The six dividends now declared out of this year's profits were back dividends. They amount to about $1,242,918, which is equivalent to $12 per cent. on the $20,000,000 authorized capital stock of the American Ice Securities Company.

GET FUNDS TO AID STRIKE OF CAR WORKERS

Sister Lodge Helps and Committee Will Tour State to Raise Money.

CONFIDENT OF SUPPORT

The striking car workers of Allston are to-day confident that they are to have financial support in their struggle for a raise of fifteen per cent. in their wages and the abolition of piece work. Not less than 278 labor unions connected with the Central Labor Union of Boston have indorsed their strike, and will also financially aid the 200 men who over a week ago quit their places pending a settlement of their demands.

At a meeting held to-day by the Allston car workers the following committee was appointed to tour Massachusetts, explain their fight against the piece work system of the Boston & Albany railroad and ask for financial aid: President William G. Johnston, John J. McCarthy, George Angbertou, John Sesson and Henry H. Willson.

Expect Strike Benefits.

The officials of the striking car workers expect to secure enough funds to guarantee to each man at least $10 a week while on strike.

At an enthusiastic meeting last night of Plymouth Rock Lodge No. 184 of the International Association of Car Workers of Hyde Park it was unanimously voted to donate immediately $300 to the strikers of Allston. The lodge also voted to donate $200 a week to the strikers until they had won their struggle.

Machinists' Helpers to Join.

Thirty machinists' helpers will join the striking car workers at the Allston shops of the Boston & Albany railroad on Monday if their demands for an increase from eight cents to twenty cents an hour is not granted. The demand was first presented by Treasurer William Ashton of the Boston Machinists' Helpers Union yesterday, and refused. A grievance committee will call upon the company Monday morning and repeat the demand.

A benefit for the 200 striking car workers will take place in Allston on November 7.

PROBE WOMAN'S DEATH; SLAYER NOW MISSING

Story of Accidental Shooting Rouses Police to Rigorous Action.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 27.—Further details regarding the mysterious shooting of Mrs. Annie L. Steward, a former chambermaid at the Crawford House, Boston, by William Priest of that city, in the former's home, at No. 22 Cope street, yesterday, have resulted in an autopsy by the Medical Examiner and the probable ordering of an inquest.

The claims of the young widow's sister, Mrs. G. N. Shea, that the shooting was accidental, coupled with the mysterious disappearance of Priest immediately after summoning a physician to attend his victim, led to a rigorous police inquiry, which revealed that the two had known one another some eighteen months ago, when the woman was employed at the Crawford House.

A few months ago Mrs. Steward, who was twenty-four years old, moved to this city and purchased the Hope street house, which she fitted up as a rooming establishment. Six weeks ago Priest came here and engaged rooms at Mrs. Steward's home. He is twenty-eight years of age, and of late has been out of employment. It is stated that he went to Woonsocket within a few days looking for work.

Died at Hospital.

Yesterday he was explaining the mechanism of a thirty-eight calibre revolver to Mrs. Steward and her sister, according to the latter's story, who with her young boy were the only witnesses of the affair. Mrs. Steward was seated on a piano stool, about six feet from Priest. Suddenly the weapon was discharged, the sister says, and the bullet struck Mrs. Stewart in the head. She was taken to the Rhode Island Hospital, where she died within two hours while on the operating table.

The autopsy revealed two wounds in the woman's forehead, one evidently being the place where the heavy bullet crashed into her brain and the other from which it emerged.

Mrs. Steward's sister declares that there had been no quarrel between the two, and that no reason existed for believing that the shooting could have been intentional.

Priest, after the shooting, ran for a physician, and after explaining that he had shot Mrs. Steward by accident, promptly disappeared. Up to last accounts the police had failed to locate him.

Mother Near Death.

Mrs. Steward's sister, Mrs. Shea, resides at No. 99 Broadway. Her story of the affair is as follows:

"I did not see the weapon discharged. I had just turned to adjust my little boy's coat when I heard the revolver go off.

"I turned around and saw Priest standing, with his arm pointing toward Mrs. Steward, who was toppling over backward from the piano stool.

"He stood for a moment as though benumbed with horror. Then he exclaimed, 'This is a terrible accident!' and ran out of the house for a doctor."

Mrs. Steward's folks live at Chateaugay, N. Y. Her mother, who is in a dying condition, has not yet learned of her daughter's death.

YOUNG IRISH ENVOYS HERE TO SPEAK FOR HOME RULE FUND

RICHARD HAZLETON. THOMAS M. KETTLE

ENVOYS WHO BRING IRELAND'S MESSAGE TO IRISH IN UNITED STATES

Thomas Kettle, M. P., and Richard Hazleton, M. P., Call on Governor and Mayor To-day.

Thomas M. Kettle, M. P., and Richard Hazleton, M. P., the two young Irish envoys who arrived in Boston last night for a speaking tour of New England either in behalf of the Irish Home Rule fund, today called upon Mayor Fitzgerald and Governor Guild. They were escorted by a committee of the United Irish League, who also showed them about the city.

This is the first visit of either Mr. Kettle or Mr. Hazelton to this country. They arrived a week ago at New York. Upon arrival from that city they were met last evening at the South Station by a committee of the league, headed by National Secretary John O'Callaghan, National Treasurer Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, Dr. Thomas J. Dillon and other officials of the local organization.

The party went immediately to the Hotel Bellevue, and after dinner Mr. Kettle discussed the Irish situation and the prospect for home rule. Mr. Hazelton refused to be interviewed, insisting that Mr. Kettle had covered the ground.

Both in Parliament.

Both envoys are boyish looking, but, as Mr. Kettle expressed it, they have "a certain claim, although laboring under the sin of youth, to represent current Irish opinion." They have just been elected to Parliament in closely contested districts, Mr. Hazelton having won special distinction by defeating the former Chief Secretary of Ireland, Rt. Hon. Walter Long, in the South Dublin district. He was elected immediately elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the member from North Galway, a strong Irish constituency.

Mr. Kettle represents East Tyrone. He is a barrister at the Irish bar, and a graduate of Royal University, Dublin. Mr. Hazelton, in the words of his colleague, "is a commercial man."

"The dominant factor in the political situation is the fact that the Liberal government, now in power, pledged itself at the next session in 1907, to introduce a measure dealing with Irish government," said Mr. Kettle.

Now a Fighting Force.

"We recognize that this Liberal government is a friendly government, as English governments go. At the same time, we recognize that there is no Liberal industry a Whig wing. Furthermore, it has always been our experience in Ireland that it is accepted as a first principle of Irish politics, that the goodness or badness of any measure, whether it be Tory or Liberal, is directly determined by the amount of pressure that Ireland can bring to bear.

"If we are to make an equitable treaty of peace with England we must have a strong fighting force in the field and a well-filled war chest. We have come to America to ask for money and also for material support in the battle of next year.

"In Ireland itself the outlook is promising. Tigers do not change their stripes in that climate any more than in any other parts of the world."

Messrs. Kettle and Hazelton will begin their campaign in the interest of the Irish cause at Lawrence to-morrow night.

UNITED IRELAND TO FIGHT TO FINISH FOR HOME RULE

As to the immediate political future of Ireland, we cannot, of course, prophesy. We know only one thing with certainty, and that is our own minds.

The message we have been bidden to bring from Ireland is that Ireland is more solidly united than ever before and more resolutely determined to fight out this battle for home rule to a finish.—THOMAS M. KETTLE, Irish Envoy.

THREE CITIES CHEER HEARST

By Boston American Leased Wire.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 27.—William Randolph Hearst last night passed from triumph to triumph in his trip through Albany, Troy and Cohoes.

Albany turned out probably the biggest crowd ever seen for a political demonstration, a crowd which in size eclipsed any demonstration ever held at the capital of the State.

At Cohoes the night of triumph was complete. There were 10,000 on the streets, and 2,000 were literally crushed into the Opera House.

All three demonstrations were such as to convince Mr. Hearst that the prediction he made in his speech that he would win by 250,000 to 250,000, was more than justified.

CABINET NOW FEARS BREAK WITH JAPAN

Roosevelt Sends Agent to Probe School Action Against Japanese Pupils.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The situation to-day between Japan and the United States over the segregation of Japanese children in California is most serious. After the Cabinet meeting yesterday, at which the matter was discussed at length, a member of the Cabinet said the opinion was that the situation was exceedingly grave and would require the most delicate treatment to avoid an open rupture.

President Roosevelt directed Victor P. Metcalf, secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor, to proceed to San Francisco and make a thorough and complete inquiry into the situation affecting the exclusion of Japanese children from the schools provided for white children, and also directing him to place Japanese pupils in separate schools. The President is anxious to get first hand from a representative full information affecting every phase of the subject to the end that whatever action is taken by the government may be after an accurate understanding.

THREE GREAT POWERS UNITE TO CURB KAISER

Great Britain, France and Italy Form New League of Peace.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Diplomatic circles are to-day discussing the long guarded secret of a league of peace in Europe. A military convention, which in effect amounts to a full defensive alliance, has been made between Great Britain, France and Italy. This instrument has not actually come into effect yet, but in reality it is already an almost dominating factor in the European situation. It becomes operative whenever the triple alliance between Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, under that designation, shall expire either by expiration of time or by any other cause.

This regrouping of great powers is a natural outcome of the destruction of the balance of power in Europe consequent upon pursuits of Russia in the Japanese War. The chief reason for believing that it commands the sympathy of the United States government, which has been well aware of its inception and progress. The creation of this new international compact has been accomplished and followed by serious difficulties and even dangers. First and obviously was the fact that Germany would regard it not only with natural resentment, but as a direct menace

SPEAKERS ARE CHEERED AT BIG LEAGUE RALLIES

Hudson and Maynard Voters Enthusiastic at Mention of Candidates' Names.

CROWD BOTH TOWN HALLS

Special to the Boston American.

HUDSON, Oct. 27.—Hudson and Maynard voters were out in big numbers last night to listen to J. T. Auerbach and Captain Thomas H. Bates of Boston at the Independence League rallies held in the Town Halls of both places. John J. Mitchell of Marlboro, candidate for Senator in the Fifth Middlesex District, and Cornelius J. Lynch, candidate for the House from the Hudson and Maynard district, also added their efforts to the speech-making.

Mr. Mitchell explained his course in the Legislature and criticised that of Senator Harris Hunter, his opponent. He pointed to the fact that he had voted for all matters in the interest of the people, particularly the Overtime Bill, and said that Hunter voted for corporation measures.

Mr. Lynch reassured his hearers that he would look out for the interests of the laboring man. Mr. Lynch's attitude towards labor has always been received with favor, by his supporters.

In both towns the audiences, which filled the halls, showed their enthusiasm by continued cheers for all the speakers. Shouts for Moran and Brown were also heard, and many wanted to see these two leaders of the ticket.

FIGHT DECISION OF SHOE BOARD

Special to the Boston American.

BROCKTON, Oct. 27.—President-elect Hickey and Vice-President-elect Murray of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union of Brockton, have issued a joint statement of protest against the recent decision of the executive board of that body in declaring its last election void.

A monster mass meeting of the boot and shoe workers has been called for Sunday afternoon. Members of the various locals all over New England and the White West have been invited to attend. The executive board has been invited to appear before this meeting and explain its action. So great an excitement is expected that two halls have been engaged to take care of the throngs, Faulon Hall on Main street and Tvernia Hall on Ward street.

PUBLICITY OF BREAK PAINS VANDERBILT

Consuelo's Father Shrugs His Shoulders at Story of Marlboroughs' Separation.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—William K. Vanderbilt, the father of the Duchess Consuelo, arrived here to-day from Ottawa in his private car attached to the Adirondack Special. When the dispatch from London announcing that the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough had decided to separate, and that the Duchess was to allow her husband $100,000 a year, was shown to Mr. Vanderbilt, he shrugged his shoulders and said:

"I hope you will excuse me. I do not want to be quoted in this matter. It is something that I should prefer not to have publicity given to."

"But, is it true?" he was asked.

"Well," he replied, "if it is, it is more than I know about the matter. The dispatch comes from London, and they certainly know more about it there than I do."

Mr. Vanderbilt had not displayed any impatience or other mark of annoyance, but seemed to be grateful when the publicity given the affair.

At the end of the interview he got into a waiting automobile and was driven away.

A passing electric car was crushed by the falling pole and one of the passengers sustained a nervous shock.

24 REPUBLICANS FILE PAPERS FOR ALDERMEN

111 WANT TO BE COUNCILMEN AND TWO SEEK STREET COMMISSIONER NOMINATION.

The opening of the Republican nomination papers at the headquarters of the Republican City Committee, No. 6 Beacon street, to-day, disclosed that there are twenty-four candidates of that party for the Board of Aldermen and 111 for the Common Council, while two seek the $4,000 street commissionership at present held by James A. Gallivan, Democrat.

While there are but six Republican members in the present board of Aldermen, there are twenty-four now after the thirteen nominations to which that party is entitled. All the Republicans in the present board, with the exception of Alderman Bromberg, seek re-election. Bromberg won the Senatorial nomination in his district and probably will be elected.

Aldermen Bangs and Berwin will be allowed a renomination without a fight, but the other three aldermen, Battis, Draper and Bell, have contests in their fields. Judge Louis M. Clark, who was a member of the board in 1905, and Alfred M. Bell will, who was a member in 1903, both seek nominations in the Dorchester district.

Six Ward Fights On.

The candidates for the street commissionership nomination are William Loring, of No. 66 Harbor View street, Ward 22, Dorchester, a real estate dealer, and John F. Scanlon, a civil engineer, residing at 24 River street, Ward 24, Dorchester.

For control of the ward organization there is a fight on in but six of the twenty-five wards, Ward 20 filing only one candidate, Joseph H. Wentworth, for re-election. In Ward 1, the regular ticket, headed by Edward C. Graves, president of the city committee, is opposed by a ticket headed by William H. Musgrave. In Ward 5, Walter Wilson puts Sears's machine ticket, as usual has a fight on its hands, an opposition ticket headed by Alexander A. Macdonald being in the field.

In the Democratic stronghold of Ward 9, a ticket headed by Abraham M. Gerstein is fighting the regulars headed by Henry Hedlund. Charlie James in Ward 10 has two tickets in the field against him, one being headed by Representative George H. Moore, who was turned down by the meeting for a renomination. In Ward 18 Charles A. Heintz heads the regulars and Charles H. Nesles the opposition, and in Ward 23 Archibald T. Davidson the regulars and former Alderman Joseph I. Stewart the opposition.

On Three Cent Fare Platform.

For the city convention, which this year nominates only a member of the School Board to succeed David A. Ellis, there are opposing delegations filed in only Wards 12 and 18.

The glowing optimism of the embryonic Republican statesmen is shown in the fact that 111 of them seek seats where but twenty-nine now sit. The party is entitled to three nominations in each of the twenty-five wards, so seventy-five of the budding statesmen will at least get a nomination, although but few of them will get beyond that.

Judging from the designations on the papers, the millionaire will be out if they should be elected. They promise everything. John Dwight of "Tom" John's son of Cleveland is in the list. Michael Penance of Ward 25. He is evidently a three-cent fare man, his platform promising a reduction of fare between Brighton and Scollay square.

Aldermanic Possibilities.

The following aldermanic nomination papers were filed:

First district (Wards 1 and 2)—Benjamin F. Bates and George H. Hurlin.

Second district (Wards 3, 4 and 5)—Frederick A. Walker.

Third district (Wards 7 and 11)—Francis R. Bangs.

Fourth district (Wards 6 and 8)—James L. Anthony and Wilford H. Cushing.

Fifth district (Wards 9 and 10)—William H. Hayward, and William J. Corbett.

Sixth district (Wards 18 and 21)—Charles M. Draper, Charles H. Barker, James F. Crowley and Charles H. Senles.

Seventh district, Wards 13, 14 and 15 (double district)—Harry M. W. Lyman, Samuel W. Wiseman and Charles F. Adams.

Eighth district, Wards 16, 20 and 24 (double district)—Frank S. Atwood, Thomas H. Bell, Eugene E. Beatty, Louis M. Lisio, Frederick W. Farwell and Alfred D. Freeman.

HEAVY FOG TIED UP THE HARBOR

Boston harbor was enveloped in one of the densest fogs seen in years early today. Shipping was tied up and the ferry boats were running at greatly reduced speed. Trains at both the North and South stations were delayed from fifteen minutes to half an hour in arriving.

The White Star liner Romanic, scheduled to sail at 10 A. M. to-day, the Warren line freighter Michigan, the Lancastrian and the Leyland line, Caledonian, which were all scheduled to leave early to-day, were tied up for hours waiting for the fog to lift.

The Advertiser and the California Winter Season.

At the beginning of the Winter season people flock to California from all parts of the country—some are Winter residents, some tourists jaunting from place to place.

They compose a body of consumers of the very best class—people with many wants and with money to supply those wants.

Tell these people about the goods you are selling through their favorite newspaper—the LOS ANGELES EXAMINER, Daily and Sunday.

In the first place, the LOS ANGELES EXAMINER has the largest circulation of any paper in the Great Southwest—on Sunday it's 75,000, and still growing.

The Daily EXAMINER has increased its net paid circulation 90 per cent during the last twenty-three months, the Sunday 72½ per cent.

It's a greater circulation than that of the Times and Herald (the two other Los Angeles papers) combined.

What does this circulation mean in the advertising field?

During the first nine months of 1906 the LOS ANGELES EXAMINER Gained 147,420 inches of advertising over the same period of 1905.

That's proof of returns.

VANDERBILT CAR IN BOSTON

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The first of the Vanderbilt cars to reach Boston since the Haynes stripped touring car, which arrived here early yesterday morning, after being driven over the roads by Charles S. Henshaw and J. W. Haynes, the latter the designer and builder of the car. The party left New York a week ago yesterday for a tour of New England, coming along the regular route at a nice, leisurely rate of speed, stopping en route to visit their agencies and demonstrate the value of the car to prospective customers. This car, which it will be remembered did such excellent work in the trial of the Vanderbilt, fairly and honestly earning a place for itself on the team, and which in the final made a most creditable showing, was the lightest horsepowered and weighed of all entrants. Furthermore, she is nothing more nor less than the 1907 touring car, stripped for racing purposes, every part and parcel of her being identical with the stock car.

In speaking about the trip to this city Mr. Henshaw said that the car ran beautifully all the way. Wherever a stop was made a crowd always collected, and there was an endless amount of questioning as regards the car and its construction. In Hartford the interest was particularly great, owing not alone to the work of the car in the Vanderbilt, but also to the fact that both Mr. Haynes and Mr. Henshaw are well and favorably known there, the former having been connected with the Hartford Driving Club and the latter having done business in that city for several years.

The car is to remain in Boston until Monday, and can be found at the Columbus avenue establishment of Charles S. Henshaw, who is sole New England agent for the Haynes.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Miner of San Francisco have been spending a few days in this city as the guests of Kenneth M. Birks, local agent for the Locomobile. Mr. Miner is one of the characters of the motor world, original to a degree and entertaining in the extreme. There is but one Miner. He can keep on you interested all day and night long. He, like Birks, sells Locomobiles. His stories, all his experiences in the recent earthquake in his native city would fill a book. The best of it is, however, his elevation from the lowest depth of despair and poverty to the height of happiness and wealth. It must be said incidentally after the earthquake he took an account of stock and found that his business had gone to smash. His account books were valueless. He started in with agreements and an old Locomobile with which to start business anew. Seven years ago he were en route to him he was informed were destroyed in the earthquake. All these he has to pay for. He started to rent the old boat at exorbitant prices, and while acting as chauffeur to an Engelbuman he became acquainted with the boat used by the U. S. Government. He made an investigation and found he was selling beyond repute. The Government had boated his seven cars. He had confidence then.

He proved his ownership of the motor vehicles and for twenty-five days thereafter rented the same to the government for $200 a day. He was overjoyed and within sixteen days after the "shake," so to express it, he had constructed the largest and finest garage in San Francisco. In ninety days he had sold and delivered twenty cars. Business is booming. He is now enjoying a rest from his activities. He will soon be back in Boston. He then came to Boston for a few days, returning home by the train yesterday afternoon.

The Dodge Motor Vehicle Company, which has assumed the local business of the Pope Manufacturing Company, is to make no change in the personnel of the Pope interests. It originally intended to establish its headquarters on Boylston street, but recently gave up that idea, announcing that the Boston branch business at the Pope Building on Columbus avenue, which has for years been the home of the Pope Company).

NO CUP RACE NEXT YEAR

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—It may be stated on the best of authority that there will be no race for the America's Cup next season, but probably in 1908. Sir Thomas Lipton has no idea of challenging the New York A. C. to a race, as there not only would not be enough time to make plans for his boat, but also he does not want to precipitate a discussion regarding the rules, as the local organization has successfully tried out the new rules and Sir Thomas doesn't care to embarrass them.

COTE AND LOWE GO TO A DRAW

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 27.—Arthur Cote and Young Lowe, the former of Biddeford, Me., and the latter of Washington, D. C., boxed a fifteen-round bout before the Harvard A. C. here tonight, Cote had the better of the argument.

CULLEN TO MEET THE WINNER

Dick Cullen, the Frisco boy, has been matched by the Lincoln A. C. to meet the winner of the Dessler-McGarry bout on November 13, based has already started training at Mike Devereux's farm at High land Lake.

Cullen is already in good shape, as he is a boy who takes the best care of himself, and his style of fighting will suit the local fans, who like a good exponent of straight rules where there is continuous action from gong to gong.

Cullen has fought long distance battles in South Africa and Australia and with small gloves, and has a hand on him as tough as a ham and a long string of knockouts.

As an amateur in Frisco he won a lot of medals which are good proof of his success in his early career.

He should beat McGarry if he be is to his opponent, as he beat Hines twice in five rounds, who holds a twenty-round decision on the New Yorker, at Philadelphia this year.

HOW ROHE GOT HIS REVENGE

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Rohe has shinned the team that shinned McGraw. And what a triumph!

Rohe, a utility man with the Chicago White Sox, and in the game through accident only, was more than earned from the Baltimore Americans by Muggsy McGraw, now of the New York Giants, but then boss of the Orioles. Muggsy didn't think Rohe good enough for the Orioles, but Rohe has shown him, and the baseball world besides.

After being let out Rohe went to New Orleans, and was with the Southern Pelican team of that which just lost the champion ship of the Southern League to Memphis. In 1905, when the Southern League pennant was won by New Orleans, Chicago then secured him.

Every Girl Should Look Years Ahead Into the Future Before Making Her Choice, for Happiness or for Woe, Between These

TWO TYPES OF MEN. WHICH ONE DO YOU PREFER?

THE USELESS TYPE

Beatrice Fairfax Advises Girls to Choose the Hard-Working, Sober Man Rather Than the Man of the World

GIRLS, here are two types of men. Which one do you choose?

One is earnest, hard-working, sober, bound to rise in the world.

The other is shallow, vain, given over to cigarette smoking and will never amount to a row of pins.

But the latter is more dressy than the former, he spends a good deal on his clothes and makes a more stylish appearance.

He has more time to spend gadding about the streets. He probably is an expert dancer and has all the latest songs at his tongue's end.

He is quite a man of the world in his own opinion, and I very much fear that he makes a great impression on many of the girls of his acquaintance.

The other man is quite different. He works hard every day and all day. He has no time to dress up unless the occasion demands it. He may smoke occasionally, but has no time to make a habit of it.

He may be clumsy at dancing, but he has a right arm that is strong enough to fight his way in the world.

He is the best type of Young America and is going to work his way steadily toward success.

Now, girls, don't throw yourselves away on good-for-nothing "Willie boys," when instead you might marry good, sober, industrious men.

Don't be carried away by fine clothes and smooth speech.

Don't turn away from a man just because his manner is a little awkward and his clothes don't fit.

A man who works hard at his trade can't spend much time thinking about the cut of his clothes. But he can make a comfortable living for you and can be a very strong shield between a woman and the hard knocks of life. He can be a good provider and a man to respect, as well as love.

It is enough to make one's heart ache the way foolish girls will pass by splendid, hard-working men and choose insignificant little nobodies for their life's partners. And all because they won't take the trouble to look below the veneer of fine dress.

Don't you know, girls, that the man who has an aim in life can't spend all his time in running after girls and going to dances?

He has something better to do; he has to make a name and place for himself in the world.

The young men who are lounging around street corners and saloons will never be anything better than they are now; the chances are they will be much worse.

Look around at the married women of your acquaintance. Some of them married honest, hard-working men, others married loafers. Some of them are happy wives, others miserable wrecks.

Look forward a few years and imagine yourself in the place of either and then marry a good-for-nothing loafer if you dare.

Marry the worker and help him build up a successful career. Let him come home at night and find a cheerful home and a happy, smiling wife, who is proud of his successes and sympathetic in his reverses.

But don't deliberately walk into a life where failure is bound to come, don't tie yourself to a man for whom as time goes on you will be able to feel neither love nor respect.

Don't hesitate in your choice between these two men. One means happiness and the other woe.

THE USEFUL TYPE

What to Do for Sick or Injured When Quick Action Is Necessary

BY DR. IDA BADANES

IT is not an unfrequent occurrence for a child to be seized suddenly with convulsions.

This may be the onset of some acute disease, but in nine cases out of ten is due to indigestion. The nervous system of the child is not as firmly developed as that of the adult, and impressions, shocks or frights reflect very strongly on the delicately constructed brain of the young.

Children who are not watched closely and who have the habit of grabbing everything they see on the table may eat something that would never hurt a grown up person, but irritates the bowels of the child, and by reflex action through the nervous system will set up convulsions.

The child may have only one fit or several. It depends upon the cause.

Should you find yourself alone with a child who gets convulsions try not to be scared and not run for help.

There is no time to be lost—one must act quickly.

Put the child at once into a hot bath with a cold cloth to the head. This invariably stops an attack. When it is over take the child out of the bath, wrap it in a blanket and put it gently on the bed.

Flush the bowels with hot water. In case there is some irritant in the bowels this will remove it, and, besides, hot water thus injected has a relaxing effect.

Give another hot bath should the convulsions recur, and this is the time to call for assistance and send for the doctor.

If no disease such as meningitis, scarlatina or measles develops then look out for the child's diet. Be careful that everything he eats is fresh, well cooked and plain, else he may get convulsions again.

An attack of convulsions may mean nothing at all as far as having life goes or as far as the soundness of the child's nervous system is concerned, but should these attacks repeat themselves often consult a physician.

Should a child eat too fast and begin to choke with a piece of the food, don't wait until it goes into the windpipe, but act at once by putting the finger down as far as you can on the right side of the mouth and hooking the morsel out.

Avoid pushing it so as to help it along the wrong way.

A bean in the nose or ear should be left alone until medical aid can be got.

Manipulating by an unskilled hand does great harm in such cases.

In case of fainting place the unconscious person near an open window with the head lower than the body, because the brain lacks blood during a faint.

Dash cold water into the face and put ammonia to the nose. If this fainting is due to shock and the body is cold, wrap it in blankets, put hot water bottles to the feet and look, try to force some brandy down the throat. If this is impossible, some stimulant must be injected under the skin.

Brandy may be used for that purpose or 1-60 of a grain of strychnia, which may be repeated in one-half hour if necessary.

Should one get bitten by an ordinary, same dog, there is nothing specially to be alarmed about.

Cauterize the wound with nitric acid, by inserting a toothpick into the acid, then putting the same into each mark of the dog's teeth. Push the toothpick way into the wound. Do it three or four times, using a fresh toothpick each time.

When poison is swallowed by mistake put the finger into the throat at once and produce vomiting.

There are antidotes to almost every poison, but if I should enumerate them here either the name of the poison or that of the antidote will be forgotten when the emergency presented itself.

THE HOUSE OF DOOM

A Romance of Love and Mystery

By GEORGE BARRY BRONSON

Synopsis

SIBYL BURNETT playfully asks Wilfred Hughes to marry her. His respectful decision to be more than a friend, as she says she must marry some one, she selects Ellice Winslow. She tearfully confesses that she has a secret which she dare not reveal. That night Eric Domville, Wilfred's friend, tells him that he had seen Ethel talking to a strange man in the neighboring wood. The man seemed to be her lover, and when she told him that she was going to marry Winslow, he flew into a passion and threatened to reveal her secret if she did not marry him. She repelled his attempt at blackmail with indignation. Shortly after leaving the woods Domville hears a shot. Then a servant reports that a stranger man had been found dead in the wood. Wilfred and Eric believe they know Sibyl's secret. They read out, search the dead body of the man, and take away all his letters. Before they are quite through Sibyl and her companion arrive. The police are informed of the murder. Eric Domville and Hughes read the letters that they found on the dead man's pocket. From them they discover at once a case of bigamy—but at one time she had loved this man, known as John Parham, of Larchmont.

It is far beyond midnight when, as they sit talking and wondering how they can help Sibyl, a knock sounds at the door. Wilfred opens it, and there stands Tibble, the butler, and Sibyl's maid. Tibbl tells Wilfred that Sibyl and her friends, to run away from Larchmont to New York. East Side. She begs him to pretend that he is her husband, saying that is her only chance for safety.

Shel Burnett and Marie leave at midnight for their automobile.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued

"LET them think. We shall pretend to make inquiries and assist them. In the meantime with all these letters and things in our hands we hold the trump cards."

"If Tibble knew that we had her letters I wonder what she would say—how she would act.

"She, no doubt, fears that they may fall into the hands of the police. That is why she is disappearing."

"Of course. And for the present she must be allowed to remain in that belief," Eric replied. "I wonder who the man Parham is? We must inquire. In Larchmont are some nice houses. I once knew a rather pretty girl who lived in that neighborhood and used to take her for evening walks."

"Yes," I said. "We must discover all we can about the dead man's friends. We must also call and see the pawnbroker in Third avenue. He may be able to tell us who pawned the watch and fountain pen. If we might get them out of pawn and see whether they have any marks or inscription that will tell us anything."

On the Hunt

With my suggestion he entirely agreed, and for the second time we examined the curious letters of the woman who was now flying into hiding, and whom I had promised to love and assist.

"I had placed myself in a very difficult and dangerous position. Of that I was well aware, I hoped, however, to save her. Too well I knew that she was in despair, then, that she had seriously contemplated suicide until she had resolved to make her appeal to my sympathy and help.

Yet she was under the impression that I was as yet in ignorance of this tragedy, although in her letter, terrified, counterfeit guilt distinctly written.

I took counsel with Eric. He was entirely against the very dangerous part that I had now promised to play, saying, I can't for the life of me see what motive she can have. To hide is all very well—to bury herself in New York and pretend to be poor is certainly a much safer plan than endeavoring to slip away to Chicago, for instance. But why does she want you to act as her husband? Not for apparent's sake, surely! And yet if she has a very strong motive she would not thus run the very great risk of compromising herself. She respects you, too, therefore all the stronger reason why she should never ask you to place yourself in that awkward position. No, old fellow!" he declared, seating himself on the edge of my bed, "I can't make it out at all."

"Of course, it has to do with the affair of yesterday," I remarked.

"Undoubtedly. It has some connection with it, but what it is we can't get the secret."

"I can only act as she suggests," I remarked.

Danger Ahead

"I fear you cannot do anything else," he said after a pause. "Only you'll have to be most careful and circumspect, for I can foresee danger ahead. Tibble's clever enough, but she is erratic sometimes, and one unthinkt word of hers may upset everything. I hardly like the idea of you posing as her husband, Wilfred. I tell you plainly that I have some distinct premonition of evil—I ought not to say so, perhaps."

"I hope not. I'm only consenting to it for her sake."

"Because you are still just a little bit fond of her, old fellow. Now, confess it."

"I'm not, Eric. I swear to you I'm not. We could never marry. We are no longer lovers."

"I hope not," he said in an altered tone, "but pretended lovemaking is always dangerous, you know."

"Well," I said, pacing up the old room and down again, "there's been love out of the question. What I intend to do is to save Tibble and at the same time find out the truth. You, Eric, will help me, won't you?"

"With all my heart," he said. "But—well, matters have lately a very faint suspicion of one thing—and that is, I believe Ellice Winslow is deeply in love with her. I've seen it in his face. If so, you and I have to reckon with him."

"How?"

"Because as soon as she disappears he'll commence making eager inquiries and try to trace her. His inquiries may lead him in our direction, don't you see? Besides, it would be awkward if he found you living on the East Side."

I was silent. There was a good deal of truth in what he said. Eric Domville always had a knack of looking far ahead. He was what is known as "a far-seeing man."

"But don't you think that when I'm a compositor in a well-worn suit and a threadbare overcoat, with wages of $20 a week, I'll be beyond the pale and safe from recognition?"

"That's all very well, but the working class are intelligent. They'll easily see through a gentleman's disguise."

"I don't agree," I said. "There is no more intelligent class than the working class in New York, or indeed in any of the big cities. It is the workingman who is the backbone of the country, after all. The capitalist may direct and public companies may manoeuvre, but it is the skilled laborer who has made the country what it is. Yes, I'm quite with you there. I shall have to exert all my tact, if I'm to pass as a printer among workingmen. Yet, ards."

Tibble's idea that I should be on a more ing paper and to out at work at night is an ingenious one, isn't it?"

"Ingenious? Why, isn't she one of the very cleverest women in New York?" he asked. "I say that she is as unequaled for her ingenuity as for her beauty. Therefore, Wilfrid, have a care. I'll help you—unknown to Tibble, of course—but you to be careful. And now let's turn in for an hour or so. We must be early and alert tomorrow, for our work of fathoming the mystery must commence at once. We must be all ears and eyes. We already hold the honors in our hand, it is true; but much very difficult and dangerous work lies before us."

"Never mind," I said. "We must save her, Eric. We must save her at all hazards."

TO BE CONTINUED.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

30 AND 32 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 27, 1906

TO-NIGHT'S GREAT MEETING IN TREMONT TEMPLE

Some Familiar Faces Will Be Missing

We hope that our readers, in numbers and enthusiasm, will make to-night's meeting at Tremont Temple one of the greatest in the history of Boston.

The doors will be open at 7 p. m., and we hope that you will go early.

All ticket-holders should be present as soon after 7 as possible.

If the size of the crowd justifies it, Lorimer Hall, which is in the same building as Tremont Temple, will be thrown open for persons without tickets, and all the speakers who appear in Tremont Temple will also appear and speak in Lorimer Hall.

Tickets will not be needed for admission after 7:45 p. m. An effort will be made to provide seats for everybody and to give everyone in the crowd AN OPPORTUNITY TO HEAR AND SEE JOHN B. MORAN.

Those who want to share and increase the excitement, enthusiasm and brotherly feeling brought forth by this campaign will be glad to go and join the crowd, even though they may be unable to get a seat.

The speakers will include YOUR candidates.

Mr. Moran will speak; so will Mr. Brown, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and Thomas L. Hisgen, the candidate for Auditor, who is fighting the Oil Trust IN HIS BUSINESS, every day of his life.

George Fred Williams, who never fails to arouse and stimulate a crowd, will deliver one of the principal addresses.

It will be especially a BOSTON MEETING. All of the State candidates representing opposition to continued Trust government will be there, either to speak or to cheer.

Some faces very well known to our readers will NOT be seen at the Temple.

For instance, you won't find Mr. Gaston or Mr. Henry M. Whitney there. You won't find any representative of the Gas Trust or the Boston Street Car body-squeezing corporation.

You won't find there any representative of Standard Oil interests in Massachusetts, nor any official of the New York Central Railroad, which was recently found guilty of a crime on evidence furnished by the head of the Independence League in New York.

Mr. Mellen, whose railroad has been VIOLATING THE LAW by buying all competing electric lines, won't be there.

Lucius Tuttle, who prefers to kill employes and passengers rather than to establish a modern signal system on his railroad, won't be there.

YOU cannot do any of these gentlemen a greater favor than to stay away.

There Is Only One Issue in the Campaign, Really

And Good Citizens Eager for an End of Trust Government Must Emphasize That Point

In our editorials and in our cartoons you will see that we select for attack and TRUTHFUL description THE INDIVIDUAL MEN that stand out in the management of the trusts.

As a matter of fact, while it is necessary to pick out the responsible individuals, THESE INDIVIDUALS, WITH THEIR WEAKNESSES, THEIR SELFISHNESS, THEIR DISHONESTY, CUT A VERY SMALL FIGURE IN A CAMPAIGN OF THIS KIND.

This is a CAMPAIGN OF PRINCIPLE. There is just ONE question at stake, and that is, SHALL THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES BE A GOVERNMENT BY THE MAJORITY OF THE PEOPLE IN THE UNITED STATES, OR SHALL IT BE A GOVERNMENT BY A MAJORITY OF THE CRIMINALLY ORGANIZED TRUST DOLLARS IN THE UNITED STATES?

At this moment, as you all know very well, it is money that rules in this country.

It is money that talks in the lobbies of legislatures.

It is money that laughs at you when you are ill-treated and overcharged by the various trusts.

Money writes your laws, or if it cannot write them, IT LAUGHS AT THEM WHEN YOU MAKE THEM. You will vote this Fall for MEN, or for money.

"Every Loyal Democrat Should Support Hearst"

(From THE COMMONER, Edited by William J. Bryan)

THE men and interests making up the opposition to William R. Hearst in New York afford ample reason why every loyal Democrat should give him enthusiastic support. The men who "preserved the national honor" in 1896, the insurance grafters, the advocates of special interests, the corporation managers, the Wall Street financiers and the bond brokers who trafficked in the governments—all these are solidly massed against Mr. Hearst, and their opposition should solidify the people in support of the man who is making such an open and telling fight against these harmful interests.

Mr. Hearst is making a magnificent campaign and is frankly telling the people just where he stands. What he has accomplished for the people in the way of reforms through the instrumentality of his great newspapers is an evidence of what he will do if elected Governor of the Empire State.

With Mr. Hearst in the Governor's chair there will be no more control of New York's executive by interests that are adverse to the people.

Mr. Hearst is specific and plain in his declarations, while his opponents indulge in generalization and vituperation.

He has taken the people into his confidence, and may be depended upon to carry out his campaign pledges.

He is entitled to the support and vote of every Democrat who puts public good above private profit, and of every citizen who prefers good government by representatives of the people to bad government by representatives of special privileges.

Little Editorials from the People

A STUDY OF MORAN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I attended the Moran rally held in Brockton, and, reading about ten feet from Mr. Moran, I made a life study of our candidate. I think we made a splendid choice in him.

Mr. Moran is, to my mind, a splendid type of American citizenship. If that old philosopher were living to-day he would need a lantern in each hand at noontime to find an honest politician in the "G. O. P." I can imagine his surprise if on his tour he happened to meet "John B."

The question to-day before the citizens of Massachusetts is to choose ye this upright, honest son of the "Old Bay State," educated in your schools of culture, none better in the world, or else a past master of intrigue. Which man stands for the best welfare of the whole people, now and in the future, and for their children after them? Let us reason this question for the benefit of humanity and the perpetuation of honest enforcement of the laws of our Commonwealth.

Whitman.

WAS IT AN OFFICIAL POLITICAL RALLY?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

If your reporter had gone into the meeting of letter carriers at No. 9 Appleton street on last Friday night and not made himself known, he would have witnessed a Guild and Draper rally, with Hibbard and McMillan, Congressman Green, Carriers Arkinson of Fall River, Holland of Boston and Curtin of Lynn shouting for the success of the Republican ticket. Why should not the postmaster and his assistants show better respect for the Civil Service?

"LIBERTY."

Boston.

AND THEY'RE BETTING EVEN MONEY THAT HE'LL VOTE FOR THEM!

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

How Are They Betting?

That question about the betting is heard, and will be heard often.

We answer it once and for all.

At this moment they are betting even money that YOU, THE VOTER, are an idiot.

On State street the friends of Mr. Guild, in their Trust offices, are betting even money that the men whose families have been systematically robbed by the Trusts will vote once more to keep the Trusts in power.

In Mr. Gaston's "L" road office they are betting that YOU STRAPHANGERS will be idiotic enough to vote for Gaston and Guild.

In Burdett's Gas Trust office they are betting that the persons who paid $1 a thousand for gas while gas could have been sold at a profit at fifty cents a thousand will vote this Fall for Burdett and Guild.

At the Arkwright Club the textile manufacturers are betting even money that the persons who wanted a bill passed saving women and children from night work in factories WILL NOW PROCEED TO VOTE FOR DANA AND GUILD.

As we said before, the betting in the trust financial district is even money that YOU are an idiot.

But we rather think that on election night the gentlemen who have been betting on YOUR idiocy will find that they have greatly underestimated the strength of the new current that is sweeping through American public affairs.

Human Life and the Auto

By Rev. A. E. George

IN a hospital near Boston is a little boy who was recently struck by an automobile.

He has been unconscious for some time and may never again see the light of day. Happy and full of life as he left his home one day, he is suddenly cut down and now lies at death's door.

Who is to blame for this?

Here is the careless, we-own-the-whole-road spirit that you mark so often in the running of these machines. They go by you whizzing and seem to say, "Get out if you don't want to get hurt!"

The machine has come to stay, but the merciless type of man who runs it ought to go.

Certainly he ought not to feel his machine is a bowling alley ball likely sooner or later to knock something down.

Only a little care might have avoided the accident to that child.

Is the automobile worth more than a human life?

Is not that child's life precious to some one? Are some of us getting so cold and careless that we don't care what happens, if we only get what we want.

The chauffeur goes on his way and leaves dust and often suffering behind him. We expect the dust and the smell, but let not his trail be reddened with the blood of the innocent, which is the trophy of many a careless auto driver.

A Ballad of Broken Ties

By William F. Kirk

WHERE the gaslight beamed so brightly on Manhattan's broad expanse,
A man and wife were fighting like Nelson and Joe Gans.

"Take back that wedding ring!" she said, and thrun it in his face;
"I'm going back to mother, notwithstanding the disgrace."

The husband shook and shuddered like a cat-tail in a storm,
But never quit a minute as the argument waxed warm.

"I thought," said he, "I'd beat the second race as sure as life,"
And then this withering retort came from his darling wife:

CHORUS:

"I've done the family washing ever since us two was wed,
You've plodded from the race track with a slow and weary tread;
Now take this tip from me, my love, and don't talk back nor cuss;
From this time on a laundry is the one best bet for us!"

II.

THE stubborn husband answered, though he knew her words were true:

"Unless you iron your shirtwaists, I can never dwell with you."

The wife threw back her golden head and said: "Farewell, dear heart.
The consensus of opinion is that two fond souls must part."

She journeyed back to Binghamton, the place her folks did dwell,
And lives there to this very day, so far as I can tell.

He kept on picking horses till he finished up dead broke,
And now he often thinks about the words his Lulu spoke:

CHORUS:

"I've done the family washing" etc.

SEND forth your heart's desire, and work and wait;
The opportunities of life are brought
To our own doors, not by capricious Fate
But by the strong, compelling force of THOUGHT.

HAVE you ever noticed, that when your mind was intent upon any one subject you were sure to hear or read things on that same topic wherever you turned?

It may be a historic fact that you are anxious to learn. It your mind is absorbed with that wish, and all your mental powers are centred upon it, in the most unexpected places and ways, you will acquire information.

I have known a young man to find on a scrap of paper which came folded about a small parcel the very information he had been trying to obtain for days.

Not Mere Chance

A WOMAN was passing through a great temptation. She felt it was an unusual and remarkable experience, yet she bought a book on a news stand at random merely to pass an hour while traveling home, and there was her own story, and it proved her salvation.

When she reached her destination, a friend she had not met in years came to call one day and confided to her a story, quite similar to her own. Because she was so absorbed with her experience and continually thought of it, these histories came to her.

The instances could be repeated by the score where a mind bent on one topic drew to it other minds similarly bent.

No doubt each reader of these lines can recall incidents in his or her own career to verify the law.

For it is a Law.

Concentrated Thought

TO know and to use the power of concentrated thought is to make circumstance and control conditions.

But the individuals who can centre and maintain the thoughts on one topic for two minutes even are few. Just as the people who really intensely desire to do, have, or be, are few.

The reason failures are so common and successes so rare in life is not because Fate is capricious and Fortune fickle, but because human beings scatter their forces and dissipate their desires in a thousand ways, and have nothing left for the moving power of great issues.

If you think concentration easy try to think of any one subject for two minutes by the clock without one other thought entering your mind.

If you can do this, you can succeed in any undertaking.

If you cannot do it, begin now to practice concentration.

Give a little time—five or ten minutes—daily to the practice. For in this power lies opportunity.

Depends on Self

OPPORTUNITIES come to us, not from without, but from within.

You are the maker of your own future.

Good, bad or indifferent, it depends upon yourself. Make yourself first, and then make circumstance.

For this great work is the purpose of life. Stop thinking there is a malignant fate which controls your destiny. It is not so.

You are your own fate, your own destiny.

God is back of you, and with His aid you can turn trouble into a blessing, poverty into competence, sickness into health and sorrow into joy.

You are God's representative. He has invested you with all His powers. Use them.
